HIGHLIGHTS OF CHANGES FOR 2023

The contribution limit for employees who participate in 401(k), 403(b), most 457 plans, and the federal government's Thrift Savings Plan has increased to $22,500. The catch-up contribution limit for employees aged 50 and over who participate in these plans increased to $7,500.

The limitation regarding SIMPLE retirement accounts for 2023 has increased to $15,500 with the catch-up contribution limit increasing to $3,500, up respectively from $14,000 and $3,000 in 2022.

The income ranges for determining eligibility to make deductible contributions to traditional Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs), to contribute to Roth IRAs and to claim the Saver's Credit all increased for 2023.

Taxpayers can deduct contributions to a traditional IRA if they meet certain conditions. If during the year either the taxpayer or his or her spouse was covered by a retirement plan at work, the deduction may be reduced, or phased out, until it is eliminated, depending on filing status and income. (If neither the taxpayer nor his or her spouse is covered by a retirement plan at work, the phase-outs of the deduction do not apply.)

Here are the phase-out ranges for 2023:

- For single taxpayers covered by a workplace retirement plan, the phase-out range is $73,000 to $83,000, up from $68,000 to $78,000.
- For married couples filing jointly, where the spouse making the IRA contribution is covered by a workplace retirement plan, the phase-out range is $116,000 to $136,000, up from $109,000 to $129,000.
- For an IRA contributor who is not covered by a workplace retirement plan and is married to someone who is covered, the deduction is phased out if the couple's income is between $218,000 and $228,000, up from $204,000 and $214,000.
- For a married individual filing a separate return who is covered by a workplace retirement plan, the phase-out range is not subject to an annual cost-of-living adjustment and remains $0 to $10,000.

The income phase-out range for taxpayers making contributions to a Roth IRA is $204,000 to $218,000 for singles and heads of household, up from $129,000 to $138,000. For married couples filing jointly, the income phase-out range is $218,000 to $228,000, up from $204,000 to $214,000. The phase-out range for a married individual filing a separate return who makes contributions to a Roth IRA is not subject to an annual cost-of-living adjustment and remains $0 to $10,000.

The income limit for the Saver's Credit (also known as the Retirement Savings Contributions Credit) for low- and moderate-income workers is $73,000 or married couples filing jointly, up from $68,000; $54,750 for heads of household, up from $51,000; and $36,500 for singles and married individuals filing separately, up from $34,000.

Key limit increased

The limit on annual contributions to an IRA increased to $6,500. The additional catch-up contribution limit for individuals aged 50 and over is not subject to an annual cost-of-living adjustment and remains unchanged at $1,000.

Details on these and other retirement-related cost-of-living adjustments for 2023 are in Notice 2022-55 \(PDF\), available on IRS.gov.

PLANNING STRATEGIES

Individual IRAs and Roth IRAs can be funded up until your tax filing deadline (not including extensions). Typically, funding employer sponsored plans (via payroll deductions) must occur by 12/31. However, if you are a business owner or self employed, you may be eligible to fund a company sponsored plan known as a Simplified Employee Pension (SEP). Historically, a SEP was the only employer sponsored plan that could be set up after 12/31, with a funding deadline of your extended tax filing deadline.

Effective for 2020 and later taxable years, the SECURE Act allows all qualified plans to be established up until the employer's tax filing due date, plus extensions if applicable. The deadline is now consistent with long-prescribed deadlines for establishing SEP plans. Because deferral contributions cannot be made on income already received, the retroactive effective date does not apply to a plan's elective deferral feature.

If one qualifies, he/she can fund both their employer sponsored plan and an individual retirement account in the same tax years. If you are over the contribution limits to fund individual deductible IRAs or Roth IRAs, you may want to consider funding a non-deductible IRA and then converting it to a Roth IRA. Spouses with no earned income can still fund individual retirement accounts based on their spouse's earnings.

If you are over 70.5 and are charitably inclined, you can make Qualified Charitable Distributions (QCDs) up to $100,000 annually directly from your IRA. This can be a particularly beneficial strategy if you already must take a Required Minimum Distribution (RMD). A QCD counts towards your RMD and allows you to avoid income tax on that portion of your RMD.

Some planning strategies entail complex reporting and may impact other aspects of your financial life. HHM Wealth is happy to help you identify appropriate tax and investment strategies.
